Art Unit: 2111

1. Claims 1-21 are presented for examination.
2. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed. The examiner believes that the title of the invention is broad. A descriptive title indicative of the invention will help in proper indexing, classifying, searching, etc. See MPEP 606.01. However, the title of the invention should be limited to 500 characters.
3. The drawings filed on 3/19/04 are acceptable by the examiner for examination purposes. However, the Office of Initial Patent Examination (OIPE) reviews drawings initially for publication purposes. Direct any inquiries concerning drawing review for publication purposes to the Office of Initial Patent Examination (OIPE). See MPEP 507 for detail information.
4. The specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification. Furthermore, all claims should be revised carefully to eliminate all grammatical errors and antecedent basis problems.
5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:
A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.
6. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) as being anticipated by US Patent 6,981,073 granted to Wang et al.

As per claim 1, the reference of Wang et al. teaches “receiving data from a source device for a destination device” in Fig. 1, elements 12, 14; Fig. 24, element 406 and col. 27, lines 12-30; “receiving an interrupt request from the source device for the destination device” in col. 2, lines 52-59; col. 7, line 61 – col. 8, line 7 and “forwarding the interrupt request to the destination device in response to completing a transfer of the data from the source device to the destination device” in col. 5, lines 37-63 and col. 13, lines 3-5.

As per claim 2, reference of Wang et al. teaches “storing the data in a data queue after receiving the data” in Fig. 4, element 36; col. 6, lines 55-56 and col. 17, lines 4-7.

As per claim 3, reference of Wang et al. teaches “determining and storing in the data queue a device ID of the source device and an address of the destination device” in col. 13, lines 9-11 and Fig. 11, element 198a.

As per claim 4, reference of Wang et al. teaches “transferring the data from the data queue to the destination device in a first-in-first-out priority and in response to a path to the destination device being available” in Figures 6A-C and col. 13, lines 9-13.

As per claim 5, reference of Wang et al. teaches “interrupt queue after the receiving the interrupt request” in col. 28, lines 25-30.

As per claim 6, the limitations of the claim are rejected for similar reasons as discussed in the rejection of claim 3.

As per claim 7, reference of Wang et al. teaches the added limitations of the claim in col. 7, line 61 – col. 8, line 7 and col. 28, lines 25-30.

As per claim 8, the claim recites an apparatus. However, the limitations of the claim are parallel to the limitations of method claim 1. Therefore, in teaching the construction and use of the device, US Patent 6,981,073 granted to Wang et al. teaches a corresponding apparatus.

As per claims 9-14, the added limitations of the claims are rejected for the same reasons as discussed in the rejection of claims 2-7 respectively.

As per claim 15, the claim recites software code to perform the steps of method claim 1. The reference of Wang et al. teaches the software code to perform the steps of method claim 1 in col. 5, lines 39-42 and col. 30, lines 25-36.

As per claims 16-21, the added limitations of the claims are rejected for the same reasons as discussed in the rejection of claims 2-7 respectively.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Applicant is urged to consider the references. However, the references should be evaluated by what they suggest to one versed in the art, rather than by their specific disclosure.

If applicants are aware of any prior art better than those are of record, they are required to bring the prior art to the attention of the examiner. Applicants are also reminded that each individual associated with the filing and prosecution of a patent application has a duty of candor and good faith in dealing with the Office, which includes a duty to disclose to the Office all information known to that individual to be material to patentability as defined in 37 CFR 1.56. Applicants are advised to submit any information material to patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.97 and 1.98.
